The DLLE Unit of K. P. B. Hinduja College of Commerce participated in the National Level Workshop on "Translating Anna Bhau Sathe: Linguistic, Cultural, and Practical Challenges," organised by the Department of Lifelong Learning and Extension (DLLE), University of Mumbai. The workshop was held on 24th August 2026 at the Nano Technology Auditorium, University of Mumbai, Vidyanagari Campus, Kalina, Santacruz (East), Mumbai. The programme provided DLLE student delegates with an opportunity to explore the literary and cultural contributions of the renowned writer and understand the challenges involved in translating his work.

The workshop focused on the linguistic, cultural, and practical aspects of literary translation, highlighting the importance of preserving the original meaning, emotions, social context, and cultural identity of a literary work. The sessions also discussed how translation can help literature reach wider audiences while maintaining its cultural essence and social significance. Students gained insights into the challenges of translating regional literature and understanding different linguistic and cultural perspectives. The discussions provided valuable academic exposure and encouraged participants to develop a deeper appreciation for literature, language, and cultural diversity.

Overall, the workshop proved to be an informative and enriching experience for the participating students. It broadened their understanding of translation, literature, and cultural representation while providing meaningful exposure through expert-led discussions. The programme encouraged students to engage with literary and social themes through a broader perspective and strengthened their appreciation for cultural diversity and meaningful communication.
